

FIRE PROTECTION PERMITS ISSUED AND WATER BONDS ARE APPROVED

$99,708.50 to Be Asked for Betterments of Supply and Hydrants

With members of the City Water Board, and of the committee of the chamber of commerce on fire protection present, the reports with recommendations and specifications were analyzed by the city trustees last night and a final decision reached as to the amount of the bond issue to be called for supplying Eagle Rock with adequate water supply and fire protection.

The amount to be voted totals $99,708.50 in the exact figures compiled in the two reports, one from the fire protection committee, and the other from the water board. The bond election will be called for two separate issues, as recommendations do not conflict, and are both considered necessary for water and fire protection.

For fire protection, the bond will call for the voting of a sum of $12,206 for the installation of 123, 4-inch, and 6-inch hydrants where the city now has 4-inch and 6-inch mains. In the district now supplied with 2-inch mains, which are not considered adequate, and which do not permit of the attachment of the standard 4-inch hydrant, it is recommended that $24,206.50 be voted to cover the cost of replacing these with the 4-inch mains.

For adequate water supply, figured at $85,500, doubling the present number of mains, the water board recommended the drilling of two wells, with centrifugal pumps, at a cost of $75,400; the building of a steel reservoir on Sagamore hill of a 300,000 gallon capacity at a cost of $3,500; extension of the 6 inch main to Douglas to Sagamore reservoir, using a portion of the mains to be removed from Colorado at $900; the laying of a 6 inch main in the alley between Central and Valley Drive at $650; and the removal of the 6 inch main on Colorado, to be replaced by a 12 inch main, at a cost of $35,275, with a sum of $3,000 set aside for real estate, and $1,275 set aside for the removal of the 6 inch main now in use on Colorado boulevard.

One of the original specifications made by the fire protection committee, which was subsequently dropped from the bond issue, was the proposal that the city of Eagle Rock take over the meters and mains of the city of Los Angeles, city now supplied by Glendale. Objection was raised to this, on the grounds that the city could not, in justice to other residents, who had paid for the extension of water mains to this property, cover this most under a bond issue. It was also pointed out, by Godfrey Edwards, that should each of the propositions made by the water board and the committee appear as separate numbers on the ballot, voters might pass the recommendation to take over the addition to the burden of the distributing system of the city, and fail to pass the bond for the additional wells, thus bringing the city to face a water shortage.

It was finally decided to drop this proposition from consideration under the bond issue, and bring the entire specifications of the fire protection committee as one issue, and the specifications of the water board as one issue, appearing as separate numbers on the ballot.

When the matter was first brought before the board, it seemed that there might have to

PERMITS ISSUED FOR TWO NEW BUILDINGS

September Proves Record Breaker in Inspector Dale's Office

Two building permits totaling $50,000 for two new store buildings in the eastern part of the business section in Burbank, were secured from Building Inspector Dale Monday by M. Spazler.

One of the permits, which was for $35,000, was for the new building to be erected by Mr. Spazler on the land at the northwest corner of Verdugo avenue and San Fernando boulevard.

The $15,000 permit was for a building to be erected on the south side of San Fernando boulevard and between Tujunga and Verdugo avenues.

The building at Verdugo and San Fernando will be of brick, two stories in height, with six store rooms on the ground floor and a hotel on the second floor.

This building is slated to be ready for occupancy within two months.

The other building will be two stories in height, with two store rooms downstairs and a hall on the second floor.

The two permits for $50,000 makes a good start for October at the building inspector's office.

be a revision of either one of the reports, but at the meeting last night, F. H. Ducker of the water board stated that the members of the board saw no objection to the report as read, but that the only doubt he had entertained was as to how heavy a bond issue the city could carry.

The recommendations of the fire protection committee were taken before the board of fire underwriters in Los Angeles before presentation to the local authorities.

The recommendations of the fire chief of Los Angeles were also followed out, McCammon, chairman of the committee, stated.

The election for the passing of these bonds will come after a period of about 60 days, according to City Clerk B. B. Bartollett.

ELDER WARREN DRAWS LARGE AUDIENCE

By W. L. TAYLOR
The Seventh Day Adventist church, corner Isabel and California, would hardly seat the large audience which gathered Monday night to hear Elder Warren, who is conducting a series of meetings all this week at the church.

The interest from the beginning of the meetings has been good and is increasing each night.

As a basis of his remarks, Elder Warren used the second verse of First Corinthians, "I determined not to know anything among you, but Jesus Christ and Him crucified." From this text, Elder Warren delivered a strong and appealing sermon, using illustrations here and there which impressed the points he desired to make.

"Paul was determined to preach Jesus and Him crucified," Paul was in Corinth, a city of learning and culture. He was an able man himself and could have delivered a message upon any subject, but he believed the most important subject was Jesus and Him crucified, and he never failed to preach upon this wonderful topic. The more he was persecuted, the more he preached Christ. It was not a popular subject in those days, but it was Paul's only message.

"The crucifixion was an ignominious death. Only the outcasts of the earth were crucified. Romans were killed, but none was crucified. It was not a popular subject for Paul. But it was the life-giving subject for the world, and Paul knew it as much as any man who ever preached the gospel. There were demands in those days for other kinds of preaching. The Jews asked for signs, the Greeks sought wisdom and others had their pet hobbies that they would like to hear elucidated upon, but Paul preached Christ and Him crucified. Oh, that we would do more of this kind of preaching today. If we did the world would be better, and a revival would sweep over the land that no human agency could stop or hinder."

"Our greatest need today is an enthusiasm for the Cross of Christ. The touchstone of power is the Cross. We are hard-hearted. This is one of the ways evil has gotten in its work. We often go to sleep in church, but as soon as the meeting is over we are wide awake. The devil has taken advantage of our lethargy to keep us from hearing the sermon, but we are always awake when it is over. Back in the early days there was a kinder feeling than is manifested now. Although commanded by God the people hesitated to offer an innocent lamb as a sacrifice. They had feelings of tenderness in those days. Father used to punish me severely when I was a boy, but the worst punishment I ever had was when my mother looked sad. My mother has gone from me many years ago, but her face still remains a memory that always cheers me on, and will ever do so until I meet her again in the City of God."

"It was not the physical suffering that killed the Master on the Cross. He had the sting of the world upon his shoulders and they weighed him down. The cross is a revelation of our stupidity and sin. It points us to the sinful ways we are traveling, and it also points us to the lamb of God who taketh away the sins of the world. Oh, that I could burn this thought into your minds, and call each of you by name and tell you this message is intended for you. Jesus is watching and waiting for you—will you heed His voice?"

"The greatest good I get out of life is when I can help someone. I am often called upon to visit the afflicted and those to whom death has come. I go and cry with them and minister as best I can, and I see the face of the blessed Master shining through the tears of their grief and telling them of the land where there will be no more death or heartaches."

Elder Warren closed his sermon with a vivid picture of Paul's appeal to the world in behalf of Christ and the lost.

"Paul counted the cost of his course, but he was willing to be cast into outer darkness if he could save even one soul. We need to spend more time with Jesus," said Elder Warren, "then we would have more power to do good and show forth the works of the Lord."

The meetings will continue every night this week and the public is invited.

INDEPENDENT BASEBALL CLUB'S MANAGER OFFERS TO REPRESENT BURBANK IF FANS WANT TEAM

Meeting Will Be Held at 8 o'Clock Thursday Night by Fans of National Pastime, to Discuss Plans for Winning Club Here

SAM CLARK, MANAGER, IN BURBANK TODAY

Team Already Organized and Outfitted and Has Won Three Games This Season; Many Good Players Included in Lineup

For the purpose of sponsoring an independent baseball club to represent Burbank, a meeting of the local fans of the national pastime will be held at 8 o'clock Thursday night at the city hall.

Burbank's opportunity to secure a first-class semi-pro baseball club already trained and outfitted for action was presented Monday morning, the offer coming from Sam Clark, the manager of the team that will represent Burbank on the diamond in case a baseball nine for the city is desired.

Manager Clark called Monday at the Burbank chamber of commerce and at the Burbank Daily Press, his visits here resulting in the meeting being called for Thursday night, at which time Manager Clark will appear and explain the nature of his proposition.

As the team is already outfitted, no request for money to buy uniforms will be made at the meetings, but an effort will be made to learn if the Burbank fans will support a good live nine.

The question of securing a suitable diamond, and other matters, will be brought up at the meeting Thursday night.

The members of Manager Clark's aggregation include both former professional and independent players. They are organized to play on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays, the members of the club working during the week.

All of them love the game, desiring to remain in trim, yet having regular positions that do not permit their playing steadily. The members of the team are as follows:
Grimes, catcher, formerly with the Chicago Cubs in the National league; also ex-Three I league player.
Lewis, catcher, Southern California semi-pro player.
Harris, pitcher, formerly of the Arizona Copper league.
Griffin, outfielder, veteran player. Seiser, pitcher, West Texas league.
Sam Clark, manager and third baseman, formerly of Des Moines.
Walters, outfielder, Ohio independent club.
Coyle, shortstop, San Pedro independent club player.
Coleman, second baseman, San Joaquin Valley league.
Brinkie, outfielder, formerly of the old Federal league.
Meyers, first baseman, Illinois independent player.

The team comprised of the foregoing players already has played and won three games. A week ago last Saturday they defeated Los Angeles Service company team, 20 to 4, and on last Sunday walked away with a double-header, walloping the Bradford Bakers, 28 to 5, and the Eastern Outfitters, 7 to 6.

In playing their semi-pro games in Southern California, the members of the team prefer to represent some city, giving Burbank the opportunity of being represented in this manner.

Although many fans have expressed a desire for a good, winning baseball club in this city, Burbank has no baseball team at present, excepting the high school and grammar school teams.

The club already has been granted permission to use the diamond motors, who are Mr. and Mrs. Carlton, without any money for their time and trouble.

But their manner of conducting the exposition from start to finish, and the pair feel well rewarded.

In fact, Mr. and Mrs. Carlton have become attached to Burbank, having arranged to make this city their headquarters. The big tent will be stored in Frank Thompson's barn, located in the rear of the exposition grounds.

And to show their sincerity in saying that they like Burbank, Mr. Carlton joined the local chamber of commerce.

In addition to gaining a live-wire member, the Burbank chamber of commerce gained a cash sum of $194.60. Secretary Colburn reported.

The chamber of commerce was given 5 per cent of the $446 taken in for booth space, which amounted to $42.30.

The concession rights totaled $94.45, the local chamber of commerce getting 10 per cent, totaling $9.45.

The number of paid admissions at the exposition was 5,710, amounting to $571, of which the chamber of commerce received $142.75, making the grand total for the local organization $194.60.

In addition to the favorable publicity they received at the exposition, the merchants who had booths at the event gained financially. Sales were made directly as the result of persons seeing certain articles at the exposition.

The merchants of the city also gained as the result of the money being spent here on the venture by the Carlton company.

In keeping with his live-wire policy, Secretary Colburn worked hard to bring the exposition to the city and to help make it a success after bringing it here.

Another person who materially contributed in making the affair a success was J. H. Barnum, president of the chamber of commerce and a big booster for Burbank.

LITTLE TALKS ON THRIFT

By S. W. STRAUS, President American Society for Thrift.

IT IS difficult to break away from old habits, and, for this reason the hardest dollar to save generally is the first one.

After the start in saving money has been made, the way becomes continually easier because the new habits of life gradually become more fixed.

The reason many persons practice thrift is not that they do not appreciate its advantages, but they never can bring themselves to the point of making the start. It is so much easier to procrastinate month or next year. But the best time to begin thrift is the present moment. Tomorrow will bring its difficulties, its problems and its temptations. Nothing whatever can be gained by putting off the day of a beginning in thrift.

It should be borne in mind also the amount of money one saves at the beginning is not of importance. The chief factor in the process is making the actual start. After this has been accomplished, one's own enthusiasm will assure the saving of the largest possible sums. It is well to make the matter of saving money a part of one's regular routine. Save systematically.

It also is well to keep a record of one's expenditures. In brief, this is to run your personal affairs with much the same accuracy and careful accountability methods that are practiced by wisely administered business corporations.

Make the start in thrift today. Do not be even discouraged if the first sum you save is only a few pennies.

The important question is not how much, but when.

Field Marshal Sent By England to Conduct Constantinople Defense

Following the Turkish army's victorious advance, Great Britain sent Field Marshal Lord Plumer, who won fame as a commander during the world war, to take charge of the defense of Constantinople.

J. G. HUNTLEY RETURNS FROM THE EAST

J. G. Huntley of 1434 Highland avenue returned to his home city Monday night and admits, after touring the Atlantic coast, that Glendale looks very good to him.

He left Mrs. Huntley and Virginia visiting relatives in New York state. They will make a leisurely return via the southern route, taking in Florida resorts and New Orleans, La., not reaching Glendale until November.

Mr. Huntley says they had an altogether delightful trip taking plenty of time by the way. About six weeks were spent in the Canadian Rockies and two weeks traveling at the principal points of interest. Whenever possible they traveled by water, taking steamers on Lake Superior and going thence by water to Toronto, Montreal, and Quebec, taking in the Thousand Islands on the way with a week's stop at one of the island resorts. Lake Champlain and Lake George were toured in the same way and they had the pleasure of the lovely ride down the Hudson to Albany. The big cities of the east were visited, of course, the places especially enjoyed by Virginia, being New York, Washington and Atlantic City. Throughout their journeying they had only one rainy day and that did not interfere with their plans. Washington was very hot and so was Buffalo, but with that exception the weather was delightful.

Mr. Huntley found business conditions still subnormal, but eastern merchants were feeling much more encouraged than last year at this time except in Washington, where business appeared to be very dull. Nowhere did he see building activity equal to that of Southern California. There has been a decline in the inflated property values of suburbs around New York, due to the return to that city of urban dwellers, who were driven out by the high rents and are now coming back. The real estate market, however, to be in the more expensive country places. In general property values are about the same as here.

The prices of clothing he found 20 to 30 per cent below Pacific coast quotations, but wages and other costs about the same.

On his way home he met Dr. Harwood in Chicago and in Denver encountered A. L. Baird, who returned with him.

Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Morse, of 145 South Everett street, have just returned from La Jolla, where they were spending the past four months. They are now at home for the winter.

'CAMERON OF THE ROYAL MOUNTED' AT GLENDALE

Do you know why the sons of some of the best families in Scotland and England leave their homes for the untamed stretches of the vast Northwest? And do you know what happens to these men, trained for bankers and lawyers, who mingle with the outcasts of the world? Ralph Connor has written a wonderful story called "Cameron of the Royal Mounted" which comes to the Glendale theatre beginning on October 3, for three days. Come and see why Corporal Cameron left his home in Scotland and how fate shaped the course of his career in the vast Northwest.

Numerous stories have been written of the great Northwest, and as many have been portrayed on the screen. But only once has permission been given members of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police to participate in the picture making. This once was for "Cameron of the Royal Mounted."

Many things happen in the vastness of the great Canadian northwest, where the lawless pit their strength and cunning against the power of the red-coated riders who strive to keep the law. It's a land where only the strong survive and where a man who is quick on the draw has the edge on his fellows. Ralph Connor knows this country as no other writer in the world, and his story is a revelation of daring deeds and romance. If you like a picture of adventure and thrills, tempered by one of the sweetest love stories ever written, don't fail to see "Cameron of the Royal Mounted."

MISS M'PHERSON ANNOUNCES HER ENGAGEMENT

Miss Margaret McPherson of 607 North Central avenue entertained a number of her friends Monday evening, at which time she announced her engagement to Lawrence B. Stuart, also of Glendale. The wedding will take place early in November.

The evening was devoted to the playing of "500." Miss Elsie Tyler won the first prize, and consolation prize went to Miss Murray Longley. A dainty color scheme of pink and white was carried out throughout the house and at the close of the refreshments when the guests took their favors, they found the announcement of the engagement on a tiny pink heart, which bore the names and the date of the wedding.

Guests included Mrs. W. A. Stuart, Miss Marion Rich, Miss Elsie Tyler, Miss Murray Longley, Miss Marion Koth, Miss Faith Tarling, Miss Doris Wainwright, Miss Dorothy Jane Bolt, Miss Helen Cobb, Miss Marion Hindman, Miss Alice Lookabaugh, Miss Dorothy McPherson, and the hostess, Miss Margaret McPherson.

Miss McPherson is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. McPherson of 607 North Central avenue and is secretary of the board of education.

ALLIED HIGH COMMISSIONERS WHO ARE PREPARING TO DEFEND CONSTANTINOPLE AND REPRESENTATIVE OF UNITED STATES

While their governments are deciding what action to take against the Turkish Nationalist troops who have been advancing on Constantinople under Mustafa Kemal Pasha, the high commissioners of Great Britain, Italy and France have been bearing heavy responsibilities. Rear Admiral Bristol, America's representative in Constantinople, has been devoting his attention to caring for the thousands of Smyrna refugees. He is shown above at the right. At the left is Gen. Harrington, English high commissioner. At the bottom (left to right) are Gen. Sharpe of France and Gen. Montebello of Italy.

King Neptune Holds Court for Secretary Hughes at Equator

Neptune's Court in Session

New York. During the recent trip to Rio de Janeiro Secretary of State Hughes was an interested witness to the sacred rites of Neptune's Court. The ceremony was held aboard the Steamship Pan America, one of the record-making vessels operated by the Munson Steamship Line between the United States and South American ports.

Advices just received from Rio state that Secretary Hughes was greatly amused at the Neptune ceremony, and takes great pride in the diploma granted him by Father Neptune.

The Neptune ceremony is held aboard all the vessels of the Munson line and occurs at the Equator. The Neptune ceremony has its origin in the early days of shipping. When a vessel crossed the "Line" all the sailors who had never made the passage previously were summoned up for initiation. In the old days, after being sentenced by Father Neptune with punishment for having invaded his realm, the luckless candidate had a rope fastened about his waist and was tossed over the side of the ship. He hauled back again after he had been well submerged.

Nowadays the initiation is completed in the open air swimming tank, which is one of the features of the Munson line fleet. The ceremony which Secretary Hughes witnessed, and which takes place on all crossings of the Equator, is elaborately staged and takes over several hours for its enactment. As the liner reaches the Equator word comes from the bridge that Father Neptune, King of the Seas, has been sighted. Presently the bewigged figure of Father Neptune, carrying a trident, clambers over the side. He is greeted by the Captain of the vessel in the presence of the assembled passengers, and is presented with the key of the ship.

This will be a busy season for Father Neptune aboard the Munson line vessels plying to South America, for the reason that the Brazilian Centennial Exposition, which has just been opened in Rio de Janeiro, is attracting thousands of Americans.

Babson's Letter

RAIL SECURITIES
Buy Only the Long Haul Roads Says Babson.

WELLSLEY HILLS, Mass., Oct. 3, 1922.—Since the settlement of the railroad strike many tips have come from Wall Street relative to the purchase of railroad securities. Relative to these recommendations Roger Babson today issued the following statement:

"There is no doubt but that the settlement of the railroad strike is favorable to general business. Owing to the coal situation, such a settlement was absolutely necessary. Moreover, it has been more or less favorable to the railroads. The wage-workers have gone back at the rates determined by the Railroad Labor Board and most of those who went out on strike are sorry that they did it. The seniority question was settled on a 50-50 basis, neither side claiming a victory. This also is well for all concerned because the railroads are now able to restore seniority rights to the good men who deserve them and to withhold them from those who do not. Wall Street is justified in sending out reports that the settlement is favorable to railroad securities."

"The settlement of the strike on present basis should also prompt both sides to 'count ten' before another strike is precipitated. In other words, the railroad strike was expensive for both the railroads and the wage-workers. The wage-workers today realize the better able to handle a labor situation than has been the case for many years, while the railroads have greater respect for the labor unions than they have had heretofore. All of this means that when another difference arises both sides will be anxious to patch up the difficulty before a strike is called instead of being anxious to precipitate a strike as seems to have been the case two months ago. Therefore, barring the European situation which may adversely affect all securities, I feel fairly optimistic on railroad securities. I say that the European situation may adversely affect all securities because people are liable to rush to sell their European securities and in so doing all securities will be affected, even though another European war would ultimately help our industries and indirectly our railroads."

"Railroad securities, however, must be bought with great discrimination. The time is past when all railroads are good or bad. The next few years will witness as great changes in the railroad field as the past ten have witnessed in the traction field. Railroads have already felt the effects of pleasure automobiles, but they have not really begun yet to feel the effects of auto trucking. The trucking of goods within radius of 50 or 100 miles has only begun, and its radius may be readily extended to cover 200 or 350 miles. Transcontinental systems such as the Union Pacific, Northern Pacific, Great Northern, Southern Pacific, Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific, and Atchafalpa have nothing to fear from the trucks. In fact, the trucks may help them. Roads like the New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio and the Southern can survive and perhaps profit under this competition. With a road such as the Boston & Maine, New Haven, Pennsylvania, Chicago & Northwestern, Reading and the like, this is not true. These roads are bound to suffer far more from the truck than they now think possible.

"We shall live to see great highways built by the state exclusively for truck use. Railroads are destined ultimately to lose all of their short haul business and hence the roads which are in comparatively small and compact territories are sure to suffer. The only hope for some roads such as the Boston & Maine and New Haven is to sell certain of their rights of way to the state in order that the tracks may be removed and concrete highways laid in their place. Many roads have parallel lines today under their haul business and hence the company will develop one of these for itself and will sell the other at a good price to the state for a concrete truck highway. Frankly, I would rather take my chances with concrete securities than with railroad securities bought indiscriminately. Therefore, in taking any tips from Wall Street to buy railway securities use great discrimination to select those which cannot be adversely affected by a great development in trucking or those whose management is far-sighted enough to reduce their mileage to only such as is profitable, saving the rest for trucking highways."

Continued activity in building lines has brought general business to a new high level for the year. The index of the Babsonchart now stands at an improvement of 2 per cent since last week.

Truths in Epigram

THE PRESENT CRISIS

Appears now an avalanche of words concerning the situation in the Near East, and the likelihood that it is the forerunner of a world war, in which the white races are to be submerged. One of the contributions bears the signature of W. R. Hearst. In it is an appeal for the white races to stand together. Particular stress is laid on the necessity for putting aside hate as between the powers.

As the foment of international hate, is probable that Hearst is without a peer. Even in the article in question, affronts are offered to France, and to all of civilization that has declined to take Russia to its bosom. Thus the preaching, despite of the intrinsic merit of its theme, fails to carry weight. On the contrary, there is probability that it will tend to cause a real and vital danger to be ignored, in the belief that an artificial bogeyman is being created.

That Europe is to be overwhelmed by hordes such as devastated under the leadership of Attila, could be nothing but a bad dream, save in the circumstance that Europe, disunited in purpose by its own selfish quarrels, might in the emergency fail to act for the common defense. The fate of Europe is more likely to rest in its own hands than in the hands of its enemies. Its superior intelligence could safeguard it against any possible onslaught. A modern Attila would not find the conditions of old. His following would be a rabble, and it would melt in the face of organization. Therefore, to plead with European powers to cherish unity, and at the same time to try to induce them to distrust and despise each other, these being the two Hearst devices, gives a chance to make a charge of inconsistency. Pointing out the way in which Germany is being wronged by France, England hogging everything in sight, and all of them forcing Russia to be unhappy, is a singular method of coaxing them into acceptance of the policy of brotherly love.

THE NEWSPAPER STORY

Senator Medill McCormick advocates a change in newspaper style. He wants what he terms a return to the semi-editorial fashion, wherein the writer combines the narration of news, with comment tending to interpret the facts. As a matter of truth, the system he commends already is in vogue. The best newspaper correspondents, men whose opinions carry weight, are editors as much as they are reporters. They discuss politics, for instance, and in doing so conjecture as to what is to be done; what may be the effect of it; what will ensue provided the predicted course shall not be taken. As war correspondents they fight campaigns in advance, or, telling the tale of battles fought, they commend or condemn. They analyze situations and they analyze personalities. These duties come within the editorial province.

The reporter, the gatherer of news, has an office distinct from that of the semi-editorial special writer. It is his duty to state things as they are. He is not called upon to explain how he thinks they ought to be. He is the mere instrument for the recording of circumstance. But it is highly probable that the reporter will not be content to stick to this branch of his calling. Such writers as Sam Blythe and Levin Cobb possess the dual journalistic capacity. They are reporters, observing and astute. Thus they are enabled both to seek the truth, and present it, not as a mere recital, but they elevate it into a thesis, a series of appeals, an index of social conditions. Of the material they gather they are qualified to make the utmost use. This the reporter may not do. He writes his story, and he is done. Probably the real foundation of the McCormick complaint is that so much is written that has no valid excuse for being written. The trivial is too much exalted, as the base is exploited with a disgusting and wholly needless freedom. All the time, however, the working newspaper man is doing the best he can. He is acting under orders. These orders come from employers who are supposed to know what the public wants.

Newspapers, as they are, represent the response to demand. The best of them is not perfect, and the worst is rotten. Reporters take pride in being correct, and editors generally in being fair. The two, however, follow distinct lines of endeavor, and for their duties to merge, except in such way as mentioned would lead to confusion.

THE OBDURATE TURK

The humor of the Turks seems to be for war. It is rather curious that this should be so. Having beaten back the Greek, he seems inclined to place too high to estimate upon his own prowess. Greece is very far from being England. Even if the Turk and the British come to grips, it is inconceivable that other civilized powers would stand idly by. Even the United States, far from the scene of action, and yet with certain interests at stake, has announced its agreement with the English contentions. This is moral support. That it might presage active support is not impossible.

Russia shows a persistent tendency to butt in. This persistency, in the circumstances, might be deemed an insolence. If Russia cuts the figure that its present leaders appear to think, of course the fate of Europe is in its hands. But the leaders may be mistaken again, as in the past they have been puffed up by a record of errors. Another view to take of Russia, is that a nation of too little brains and character to till its own fields until they produce at least bread enough for its own children, is not a world-power at all. Its army, likened to wolves that are to ravish the Balkans, to some minds, has more the seeming of a band of sheep.

France is in an awkward position. Indeed, this may be said of all the powers, for upon their heads rests the blame for the present status. But for the bickering and jealousy of these powers, the Turk would have been driven out of the Europe that for centuries he has contaminated. Now the Turkish army bears arms sold by France. Had arms and munitions been withheld, the Turk would have been unable to menace the peace. He can shoot a gun, but in the making of guns, he is without cunning.

The hope of the world still is that war may be avoided. An additional hope is that it cannot be avoided, the Turk will get a lesson that will last for generations. As to administering such a lesson, the threats of Russia to intervene are not worth considering. It may be a giant, but a giant stuffed with straw is nothing from which to take alarm.

Considering the annoyance of life, a patient man or woman is entitled to a great deal of credit.

The reason you might as well make love to a girl is she'll say you did anyhow.

If you look for pineapples on a pine tree your search will be fruitless.

The man who marries a woman for her money will work ten hours a day to pay the interest.

THE SURPLUS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Humanity is always producing a surplus. The ordinary healthy man can and does produce more food than he can eat, more clothes than he can wear, and more other goods than he needs; that is to say, his labor is worth more than money enough to supply all his purposes.

When you take a nation full of men all busily working the surplus becomes enormous.

It is this surplus that supplies the material evidences of the advance of civilization.

Out of the surplus fund humanity has built its cathedrals and palaces, has thrown up its great cities and laid out its

Dr. Frank Crane parks, has supported its kings, nobles and other magnificent ones, has bought tissues and gauds to bedeck its women, has sustained the theater, the church and all the arts; and out of this surplus, from time to time, has sent forth its wars, it has dipped its hand into the accumulated treasures of life, and in a mad orgy of adventure has sown death in the hollows of the sea and in the trenches of the earth.

The great problem before the race and before each nation that is a part of it is what to do with this surplus, for it continually piles up, and while part of it is invested in more or less sensible ways, the most of it is wasted either in foolish experiment and extravagance, or supporting even more foolish traditions.

As the bee stores honey, and as the ant lays up its winter food, so the human animal is constantly storing up the result of his labor.

There is no doubt that when in the course of the ages we learn wisdom, the lot of man will be much more pleasant. Most of the labor that is now performed by human beings will be performed by the harnessed giants of steam, electricity and solar and radio energy.

With proper attention given to the surplus, man can make a living with his mind.

In ten centuries from now we shall look back with amazement upon an era when the great mass of human beings toiled like oxen or asses of burden, just as now from the deck of our transatlantic liner we reflect upon the time when boats were propelled by gallery slaves, just as now riding in a luxurious transcontinental train at fifty miles an hour across the plains we think in pity of our forefathers, who made the same journey in prairie schooners drawn by mules.

The curse of work originally laid upon man that he was to earn his bread by the sweat of his brow is to be lifted by two things. First, by the development of his intelligence so that he can employ the tireless forces of nature as his servants; and second, by the process of social evolution whereby in course of time men learn team-play, learn how to live together in co-operation and not struggle in competition, learn how to organize humanity so that they shall be comrades in the great war against the hostile elements of disease, decay and destruction.

We are slowly moving on our way from the heritage of the beast toward the Delectable Mountains. That Promised Land the race shall reach when at last it shall understand what to do with its surplus.

THE RIGHT WORD

By W. CURTIS NICHOLSON

QUESTIONS

George Fouts, Chicago, Ill.: "The word I want, and I am positive it exists although I have been unable to find it in dictionaries or get it from friends whom I have asked, means presence of mind or resourcefulness. It should fit into such an expression as 'the (?) Mr. Brown'. The following words are among those suggested to me: alert, dexterous, adroit, perceptive, adaptable, 'sagacious'. Answer: You alone, knowing this man intimately and fully understanding the nice shade of meaning you wish to convey, can select the right word. Following is a selection from which you can choose: discerning, quick-scented, keen, sharp, able, shrewd, sharp-witted, keen-witted, apt, sagacious, alert, vigilant, adroit, dexterous, clever.

Ida Sherman, East Orange, N. J.: "Will you please let me know whether the singular verb or plural should be used in the following sentence: 'I can assure you, the management as well as myself, (he or she) glad to hear that you were pleased with the service?' Quite some time ago, I remember that you advocated the use of plural verbs with collective nouns. Am I right?" Answer: "The Right Word" advocates the use of a singular or plural verb with a collective noun, depending on whether the noun in question is considered as symbolizing a group of individuals acting as one, or a group of individuals acting independently. Management is a collective noun, and I can imagine situations wherein the various members of the management would be "glad" individually, and not as an official unit. In such instances management should be followed by a plural verb. On the other hand, the management might be "glad" officially as a body, a unit, in which case a singular verb would be proper.

Grace Harris, New York, N. Y.: "May I trouble you to tell me which is correct and why: 'a lot of us girls'; or, 'a lot of we girls.' Answer: Avoid the use of the word lot as in the foregoing expressions. Correct: Many of us girls.

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

Many people mistake terms. They confuse definition with execution. They are the people who think a law is a force.

Just as some people say a thought is a thing.

A thought becomes a thing after it has been made into something.

You may think you are a great man. You become a great man after you have willed your thought into something that marks you great.

You think you owe society the debt of your service.

But you have to pay the debt before you are a square debtor.

So a law is not a force. Law is a definition. It is the expressed will of the majority. Set down in words and terms. But without something behind it to execute it is dead as the Dead Sea on the deadeast day it ever glinted and stunk.

We need law of course. We need the definition of the will of the majority.

And then we need the execution of the will.

By whatever means are necessary.

A law without executive force back of it is useless as the inscriptions on the Rosetta stone made use of to check an epidemic of fever.

The other day the editor of this Listening Post saw a jam of motors and trucks and wagons and street cars at the outlet of one of the tunnels leading out of our sister city.

Somebody got jammed first and then more motors got jammed and then street cars added to the jam and then there were more motors and more cars and more jams.

Nobody would give way. There was no traffic officer.

Motors stuck where they were. Not one of them would give way. And they bunched and milled like stampeding cattle.

There was plenty of law to cover the matter.

Plenty of reason.

Plenty of rule and direction.

But nobody exercised any of it.

They merely tooted and whistled and honked and swore and jammed tighter than ever.

And at length came a traffic officer.

A mere figure of a man with a uniform on. But he represented something.

He represented the law and authority.

When he signalled drivers gave heed.

And he started to unwind the tangled ribbon of motors and cars.

In about ten seconds he had the motors moving now north and south and now east and west.

And in ten minutes he had the jam cleared away.

The puzzle solved.

Because he put law and good sense into execution.

We need in this nation the will to respect and to enforce laws.

The nation is the best governed which has the fewest laws and the greatest respect for the few.

For the nation that has the fewest laws has learned to govern and restrain itself without the exercise of force.

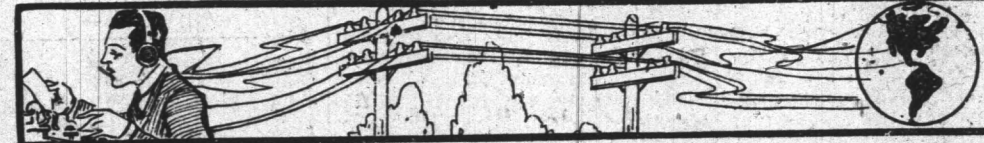

We need to stop "lifting the lid."

Or even "tilting" it.

Exercising "influence."

Seeking to escape just penalties through "higher-ups."

And dangerously subversive of the spirit of good government.

SONGS OF THE POST'S POETS

LOVE'S SECRET—William Blake, 1757-1827

Never seek to tell thy love,
Love that never told can be;
For the gentle wind doth move
Silently, invisibly.

I told my love, I told my love,
I told her all my heart.

Trembling, cold, in ghastly fears,
Ah! she did depart!

Soon after she was gone from me,
A traveller came by,
Silently, invisibly;
He took her with a sigh.

AIRPLANE USE LIKELY IN CONSTANTINOPLE CONFLICT

British action against the Turks may offer an opportunity for a demonstration of the superiority of new methods of aerial warfare developed since the world war. Such is the opinion of army aviation experts at Washington.

The air forces have never had a chance to show what they can do on their own in actual combat. During the world war, airplanes were first used as an auxiliary to the army and navy for observation purposes. At first they were not even fighting units. When dropping projectiles was attempted, it was found that heavy artillery shells and sighting devices were unsuited for aerial work and it was necessary to develop through careful experimentation new types of aerial bombing equipment. Now the American army air force is prepared to use 4000-pound bombs, carrying one ton of TNT. They believe that they have demonstrated that the largest battleship afloat can be sunk from the air, and their airplanes are armed with 37 mm. semi-automatic cannons, as many as sixteen to a plane, that can put a tank, machine gun nest, locomotive or motorboat out of commission.

New methods of aerial attack on infantry and cavalry have been developed. The Kocisusko Air Squadron operating with Polish troops against the Russians was able to do great damage to the cavalry by swooping down to within 10 to 15 feet and using machine guns on the troops directly beneath, who could not return fire because of their excitement and the speed of the planes.

Military experts explain that the objective of any invading army is to occupy or destroy the centers of industry, finance, transportation and government of the enemy. Air service officers point out that the air force can do this directly without the necessity of breaking through surface boundaries that would impede a land army.

Because of the extreme mobility and directness of the air force it is predicted that they will be able to operate effectively in the regions around Constantinople. If the British are able to bring their action into action the Kemalists with as much ease as they have policed and administered Mesopotamia where the aerial force, supplemented with only a few infantry to guard hangars and fields, have been able to keep the country in complete control.

While the British are understood to have only small air forces in the Near East at the present time, recent plans for home defense entail the raising of large aviation forces additional to the 3000 pilots now in the service. The Turks have practically no aviation equipment and it is also unlikely that they can adequately defend themselves against air attacks.

Psychologically, air attacks are very effective. This advantage would be greatly enhanced in operations against superstitious people like the Turks. In the recent civil war in China one airplane nearly put an army to rout. The constant menace or overhead attack would prove wearing even on such well trained ground-fighting troops as the Turks. The menace of aerial bombs is particularly harmful to civil populations and if gas is used the worry is long continued and is mentally and physically effective.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

SOCIETY OF SNOOPERS

[Miami Herald]

One suggestion that ought to receive the commendation and support of the people of this country is the proposition to organize a nationwide Society of Snoopers, to co-ordinate the work of those organizations and private individuals who are obsessed with the idea that they have been clothed with the right to regulate the affairs of their neighbors and the people at large.

We are becoming familiar with the workings of the parent society that has forced upon the country a law that encourages and promotes the great art of snooping, in which every man is encouraged to spy upon his neighbor and report upon his conduct.

But that organization, great and thorough as it is, does not go quite far enough. We know how the snoopers have attempted to censor the motion pictures, and we now have to learn that the same kind of people are moving to censor all sorts of publications and to purify public libraries from the contaminating and destructive effects of certain books declared by them to be taboo.

Having regulated our habits to a nicety, they now propose to regulate what we read and prevent us from seeing or hearing anything that will contaminate our morals in the least.

Of course, we, as a people, have not been able to control ourselves in the matter of drinking

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

Assertion is made that the relationship between parent and child may be determined by comparative analyses of the blood of the two. As this is made by a scientist, it carries one into a realm wherein the layman is constrained to hold silence. Perhaps the claim is legitimate. At least the layman does not know that it is not. The same doctor says that he is able to diagnose disease by the handwriting. This is a jump out of the realm of science. The layman quickly acquires the courage to affirm that he believes the doctor mistaken.

People profess to read character in handwriting, and while their guesses generally are wrong, by the law of coincidences they hit the truth occasionally, and this bolsters up their faith. Of course there is something in the theory. Many theories that, taken in a broad sense are fallacious, possess a grain of truth. For example, something concerning character is to be discerned from the sort of tie a man wears, or in the fact that his shoes are shined. Handwriting betrays education or the lack of it. It does not indicate anything in regard to inherent qualities of the writer. The written matter may be revelatory. Palsied nerves would be manifest in writing, or defective vision might be indicated. But not a stomach ache, or a twinge of gout, or a case of sunburn. The doctor might as well scrutinize a hair from the head of the patient; better in fact, for the condition of the hair might have a meaning.

Otheman Stevens, a newspaper man, wrote to Eddie Maier telling about an ex-service boy who had been shot and gassed, and had never quite come back. Stevens wanted to know if the boy could go to the Maier ranch awhile, and Maier never even answered. All he did was to send word to the boy direct. He told him to come up, and room, board, a horse to ride and all the air he could breathe, would be at his disposal.

Some scientist has conceived the idea of Arctic exploration by means of submarine. The idea is to navigate under the ice. Possibly the plan is practicable, but it is far from alluring. To dive under ice uncharted as to exits, would be a grave risk. Moreover the depth of the ice might be found disconcerting. Collision with the submerged portion of a berg is the sort of experience from which the soul adventurous, but not reckless, would shrink.

There should be in every city a law forbidding boys to steal rides on trucks, or, while on bicycles, to grasp any part of an automobile for the purpose of being towed. Sometimes the boy who does this sort of trick is killed. Sometimes he escapes, and not realizing how lucky he has been, is likely to make future essays, and lose his luck, and his life.

The law has been found deficient in respect of ability to punish a certain class of frauds. So-called contractors agree to build a house. In the beginning they take all the cash of the victim. Then they get some material on credit, take it to the premises, and perhaps actually begin work. Then they abandon the job. This is all there is to the game. Why the statutes should have a loophole large enough for the successful exit of such a rascal, the public never will understand, but lawyers point to it for enlightenment of the court, and the crooked contractor goes forth free to hunt another victim.

The fact that the American papers publishing the Memoirs of the ex-kaiser, poke fun at the weird stuff as they present it, is a hopeful sign. There were fears that some of them might be taking it seriously.

Perhaps the rush of building is shown more plainly in nothing than the difficulties encountered by the man who is having a house constructed. He can't get anything when he wants it. Usually he is able to get the promise of prompt delivery. He finds everywhere that orders are in ahead of his own, or that orders deemed more important, have come later. Then they abandon the job. This is all there is to the game. Why the statutes should have a loophole large enough for the successful exit of such a rascal, the public never will understand, but lawyers point to it for enlightenment of the court, and the crooked contractor goes forth free to hunt another victim.

Two men were killed when a ditch caved in. The record did not take up much newspaper space. Daily men are killed in some fashion wholly useless. Outside the immediate circle of mourners, nothing seems to be thought about it. But why should men, digging a shallow ditch, be killed in it? The character of the soil is known. If it is such quality that there is danger of caving, it may easily be restrained by the use of planks. The planks do not cost much, and it is possible to use them an indefinite number of times.

It seems that the fellow arrested for his crimes as he posed as a medium gazing into the future, was released on trifling bail. Of course he went away, as was to have been expected. The indications are that he is an extremely dangerous rascal, that if he got his wits he would spend his entire mundane career from now on in gazing through bars at the area within the prison gates.

The new king of Greece may be an ambitious young fellow who felt the need of a job and was willing to accept the first that came to hand, albeit it did not give many indications of being permanent.

Just back from a chicken dinner at the Mattisons. Everything perfectly O. K.—flow of soul, genial repartee, delicious birds—everything but the carving knife. Old Jim Mattison hasn't shown a whetstone to that knife since it was given to him as a part of his wedding presents centuries ago. Maybe he doesn't know that a knife should be sharpened. Anyhow, he stood up and wrestled with the chicken—practically tore it apart—and perspired and worried. And all the rest of us worried with him. The guests watched him with bated breaths and forgot to answer when spoken to and emitted heavy sighs of relief when Jim finally effected successful penetration.

"I never could carve," he said in his own defense, and his wife, being called as a witness, averred that:

"Jim never was a carver."

Somehow, I'm a little in doubt about Old Jim Mattison since I witnessed his struggle with a carving knife that was just as sharp on one edge as on the other. I've known him more or less for years. We ride on the 8:43 together and play about the same game of golf and take our politics cruelly hard. He gave me a chance to get into what he says is a good thing with him not long ago. In fact, that is why we happened to be dining with the Old Jim Mattisons. But since I saw him operate on a couple of pullets I am not so sure. It seems to me that a man who would keep his carving knife in that condition must be either:

a. Very careless and therefore not a desirable business partner; or

b. Thick headed, or he would know that carving knives need sharpening and therefore not a desirable business partner, or

c. Very selfish or he would have considered the comfort of his wife, who has to use the knife most of the time and therefore not a desirable business partner, or

d. Too busy to see to it, which argues a lack of the ability to organize and co-ordinate, and therefore not a desirable business partner.

Maybe this selecting a partner by his showing on trifles is an exhibition of praise fat-wittedness. But I do not think so. Because every human relation is merely the sum of many trifles and we must select partners by the samples of trifles they show.

Jim's sample doesn't suit.

Although phosphorus was discovered by Brandt in 1669 and exhibited to Charles II. as a "wonder of Nature," it was not until 1834 that it was first used in the manufacture of matches.

SAME HOUSE IMPROVED
BY SUGGESTED CHANGES

ORIGINAL PLAN

Five-Room Bungalow Plan Improved 100% by Inexpensive Changes

No single improvement can add more comfort into the dwelling than that of arranging separate bath and toilet facilities for each bedroom. Incidentally, no other improvement can proportionately add more to the property value.

Here we have a typical five-room bungalow, modernized in this manner, at a cost for alterations that is trivial compared to the benefits secured. No addition to the building is required, nor are any of its original attractions sacrificed.

The space which the original plan allotted to entry way and cellar stair-head is taken for a new complete bathroom, private to the rear bedroom. Yet, with the minimum amount of alteration, every advantage of breakfast nook, roomy kitchen, entry, cellar way, and closet room is just as effectively and conveniently present in the new arrangement. The addition of showers in each bathroom means the finishing touch of usefulness and comfort. Adding a lavatory in the front bedroom and a medicine and toilet cabinet above each of the lavatories would be desirable in every way.

More and more, all the time, authorities on health and hygiene are stressing the importance of ample and convenient bathing and toilet equipment for homes. Having these things is a first requisite to using them; and frequent use of them is a first requisite to health. Being human, the price of our observance of things as essential even as personal cleanliness.

Consult your plumbing dealer about how inexpensively and conveniently he could make similar improvements in your dwelling.

TRAIN FOR ADJUSTMENT

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.
(Copyright, 1922, by The Associated Newspapers.)

Said a mother bitterly in my hearing one day, speaking of her only son, a youth just out of his teens:

"He's having difficulty in getting on because people are jealous of him. They do not like him because he knows so much more than they do. Sometimes I think there is a conspiracy against him and that trouble will be made for him always."

That these statements nothing could more strikingly exemplify the blindness of mother love.

The son did know a great deal, there was no doubt as to that. His intellectual attainments were really remarkable. Even in early childhood he had shown uncommon mental ability, which his parents had taken especial pains to develop.

Unhappily, they had not taken equal pains in the matter of character-building. And, in particular, they had altogether neglected to quicken their boy's social sense, to help him appreciate that in a world where the individual must take into consideration the rights of others, must meet the legitimate demands of others, or come to grief.

That was the real reason this son of the embittered mother was experiencing difficulty in "getting on."

He had a keen appreciation of his own rights, a curious indifference to the rights of other people. So far as their dictionary definitions went, he was familiar with the meanings of "give," "cooperate," and allied words. He made no effort whatever toward their practical application.

And for much the same reason innumerable other persons are similarly finding the world a place of difficulties.

They may "know" great deal, but they do not know how to adjust themselves to society's requirements. Their early training has made them perhaps colossally selfish, perhaps over-egotistical, perhaps unduly sensitive and exclusive, perhaps positively anti-social.

In any case, they have emerged from childhood markedly deficient in the all-important matter of social cooperation, of working effectively and mingling smoothly with their fellows, or repressing personal cravings and desires when these conflict with society's needs. Promptly society penalizes them in one way or another.

Naturally, they suffer in spirit. And, according to their dominant traits, they react in various ways to society's condemnation of their adjustment-failure.

In some cases they react by becoming nervously or mentally unbalanced. In others they lapse to an attitude of unhappy passivity, exerting themselves no more than is necessary to earn a meager living.

Or they may react by feverishly accepting the gospel of social revolutionaries, of agitators no better adjusted than themselves to the demands of life. Because the society in which they live is a society into which they do not fit, they would destroy it, would reorganize the world more in accordance with their peculiar needs.

Yet again they may react by becoming criminals. Incapable of co-operating with society, they prey on it. "The world owes me a living," is their slogan.

Great indeed is the harm done by, great the torment of, the unadjusted. And since ability to adjust is mainly a product of the training received during the first years of life, great is the responsibility resting on all parents to see to it that the necessary training is provided.

CREAM OF TOMATO SOUP

One can tomato soup, one-half teaspoon soda, one teaspoon salt, two cups boiling water, two cups milk, one tablespoon flour, one-fourth teaspoon pepper. Bring tomato soup to boiling point in double boiler, add the soda, salt, pepper and boiling water. Blend the flour with milk, and add gradually, stirring constantly. Cook until smooth.

CHEESE ROSETTES

Mash soft cream cheese, season with paprika and lemon juice and if necessary add a few drops of cream to make of the consistency to press through a rosette tube. Have as many saltines, or butter thin crackers as there are salads to be served. Place the cheese mixture in a forcing bag with the number three point and press to fill the top of the cracker.

JELLY PIE

Cream one-fourth cup butter, one cup sugar, add yolks of two eggs beaten. Dissolve glass of jelly in one-half glass of hot water and stir in teaspoon cornstarch blended with cold water, beat all together and fill pastry lined tin. When done, cover with meringue.

Don't Be Fooled

"FOOL me once," says the proverb, "and it's shame on you. Fool me twice and it's shame on me."

Don't be fooled when it comes to spending your money. Patronize the merchants who have a reputation for fair dealing and honesty. Such motives must actuate the consistent advertiser. The man who invests real money in building a reputation for himself and his merchandise cannot afford to risk any of it by taking unfair advantage of his patrons.

The consistent advertiser pays money to tell you about his goods. He knows they are good—he backs them with his money because he believes they will satisfy. Only merchandise which is consistently good can be consistently advertised.

So advertising protects you against fraud and inferiority. It tells you what is new and good, making you a wise buyer. It saves you money by pointing out for your consideration only the best products and the best places to buy them.

Thrifty men and women read the advertisements. To them it is a plain everyday business proposition—a duty they owe to themselves and to their pocketbooks.

Don't be fooled.

Don't spend your money blindly

HOM-MADE RADIO
A new radio construction film, "Make-it-Yourself," now ready for distribution to schools, clubs, churches, scout organizations and like groups, has just been secured from the U. S. Bureau of Standards by the general extension division of the state college of Washington.

It shows a bright youngster longing for a $67.50 receiving set in an electrician's window. He can't afford it. Then he reads in a newspaper that the Bureau of Standards will send, on request, directions for making a practical set at home for $6.45.

With an empty oatmeal can for a tuner, a section saw for a broomstick, a pine board, and similar simple substitutes he reduces the cost of equipment, and when he is through it works!

"This film should solve the boy problem in the small town," said Dr. F. P. Naider, director of general extension. "Give a boy anything as fascinating as this to do, and there is no question of idle hands in mischief. Next to scout craft it is the best thing that has come to the American boy for a long time."

INSPECTING EGGS

Do you know how to tell the quality of an egg without breaking the shell? All you need is a pasteboard box with a hole 1 1/4 inches in diameter, a strong light and a dark room. When the egg is held close against the hole its contents can be seen and its quality indicated by the appearance of the yolk, the white, and the air space at the blunt end. By comparing the egg with charts prepared by the United States department of agriculture it is possible to learn the exact condition of an egg before it is broken.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Crandall of 411 North Isabel street, entertained at dinner Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Montgomery and son, George, of 1700 Kenneth road, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Montgomery of Los Angeles.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

JAMES W. FOLEY

SONG OF AUTUMN
Brown shocks in the cornfield,
Fields are sere and bare,
Jack Frost in the garden,
Dead leaves everywhere.
Lanes all red and yellow,
Dead vines on the wall,
Where's your Summer's wages?
Coming on to Fall!

White frost in the morning,
Pale sun at the noon,
Gusty winds are blowing,
Winter coming soon.
Robin traveling southward,
Late crows cry and call,
Where's your Summer's wages?
Coming on to Fall!

Bare trees in the orchard,
Apples put away,
Late leaves on the treetops
Haven't long to stay.
Pumpkins on the dead vines,
Big ones and the small,
Where's your Summer's wages?
Coming on to Fall!

Gray clouds thick up yonder,
Pale moon in the sky,
Squirrel on a bare limb,
Turkey roosting high.
Rabbit's got a white coat,
Trees rise grim and tall,
Where's your Summer's wages?
Coming on to Fall!

To Meet the Slugging Evil

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Ban Johnson has an idea that the problem of too much slugging can be solved by making the playing fields larger and by dividing the outfield into zones. Drives between certain zone lines would be worth two bases; between the next lines, three bases and so on.

The American league president apparently is trying to arrive at something constructive and his idea might work out, but it would take a flock of mounted umpires to rule on a drive close to the three base-home run line.

It would seem that the problem could be met by simply enlarging the playing fields and getting away from the trick right and left field stands that are numerous around the major league circuits.

Zones are not necessary. Any player who hits a drive to the corner of the centerfield fence at the Polo grounds deserves a homer and usually gets one.

Eugene Ciriqli, the European featherweight champion, is not as keen about landing the world's title as his actions several weeks ago would indicate. The Frenchman wanted to fight Johnny Kilbane and when the champion asked for several million francs, he nearly knocked out the whole French nation.

Tex Rickard then tried to get Ciriqli to fight Johnny Dundee and he wasted no time in letting it be known that he wanted none of Dundee's stuff.

They all seem to think that winning the recognized world's championship is just a matter of getting Kilbane in the ring and that he will fall over from his own weight.

In figuring up the ball players who developed the fastest in 1922, Lu Blue of the Detroit Tigers, Chick Galloway of the Philadelphia Athletics, and "Cotton" Tierney of the Pittsburgh Pirates, get the first call.

The closing season was not one in which youth crowded age off the boards. Some of the old athletes in the major leagues had one of their best years. Jack Daubert, Casey Stengel, Ty Cobb, Tris Speaker, "Eddie" Collins and Joe Bush all cut out like young kids just out.

Perhaps the most illustrious example of a come-back in 1922 was Rebel Russell, the old pitcher who came back to the Pittsburgh Pirates as an outfielder and became one of the big factors in getting the club up in the race.

While Casey Stengel could not be regarded as a come-back, in as much as he hadn't quite gone, he was one of the big surprises of the season. He stepped into a bad hole in the outfield of the New York Giants and went at such a clip for three-quarters of the race that he just about saved the team.

PICRIC ACID IS FARMERS' FRIEND

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 20. Scientific reports are continuing to come to government officials here on the safety with which the farmers of the country may use the picric acid the bureau of public roads is distributing to the farmers, under an act of congress, for stump and rock blasting purposes, so that the farmers' bill for commercial explosives may be cut down.

One of the most important of these reports has just been published, compiled by Dr. Charles E. Munroe, chairman of the committee on explosives of the national research council, the world's leading expert on explosives, an consulting expert to the war department and the navy department. Mr. Munroe is also chief explosives chemist of the U. S. bureau of mines. The report deals with the spectacular fire which took place at Sparta, Wis., when 200,000 lbs. of picric acid, in government magazines, was burned. There were no explosions among the magazines, no loss of life, and the report says the fire was extinguished within 30 minutes after discovery, owing to the effective and courageous behavior of about fifty men who were quickly assembled.

Farmers all over the country are now using the picric acid, for stump and rock blasting purposes. Uncle Sam is giving away this material to farmers, millions of pounds of it having been left over from the war, a nominal charge of seven cents a pound being made for the purpose of covering cost of drying, carting, and distribution, in addition to freight charges. Farmers are advised by the bureau of public roads to make application to the extension service of their agricultural state college, for picric acid, or they will be advised what steps to take to obtain necessary supplies of the explosive if they will write to the Drainage Division, Bureau of Public Works, Washington, D. C. Farmers are urged by the bureau to make their applications at once, as the supply will not last much longer.

GLENDALE COUNCIL HOLDS QUIET SESSION

The matter of temporary quarters for the Grand View library was taken up by the council and different suggestions were made as to how this matter could be handled. El H. Botsford and a committee from the Grand View district were present and urged that some temporary quarters be provided. City Manager Reeves was instructed to take this matter up with the committee and report with suggestions as to how the matter can be handled.

It was moved, seconded and carried that the matter of payment of lot cleaning assessment be carried over until Thursday night.

Orville Kimball was granted a permit to operate a bus line in Glendale.

A bill for $100 from the Elks' band for two concerts was ordered paid.

A demand for $250 for legal services from John C. Thompson was received and ordered paid.

Demand of City Attorney Shaw for $40 to cover the legal work on the opening of Adams street was ordered paid.

The city of Glendale was awarded the contract for the installation of water pipe on San Fernando road from Pacific to Magnolia, and a resolution to this effect was passed.

The contract for the installation of sewers in the Verdugo Woodlands was awarded to Cox and Teget. The bidders have 10 days in which to sign the contract, and within 30 days thereafter the installation work must start.

SALT'S FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

Eating too much meat may clog kidneys, then the Back hurts.

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also helps neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus helping to relieve bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everybody should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean. A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in trying to correct kidney trouble while it is only trouble.
